2. OBJECTIVES:

Design a solution for the analysis of storage operations performed by applications when these use high-level I/O libraries (e.g., stdio). The analysis must focus on different aspects such as performance, correctness, and efficiency in translating high-level operations to the system call layer.

3. BRIEF PRESENTATION OF THE WORK PROGRAMME AND TRAINING:

The work, to be carried out during the fellowship, has as its main objective the design of a solution that allows understanding the interactions of applications with the respective storage systems, when using high-level I/O libraries.

This solution should allow understandings the number and type of system calls associated with each high-level function. This is fundamental to better understand the correctness, performance and efficiency of translations currently made by high-level I/O libraries.

The tasks described in this working plan demand the application and development of concepts and techniques in the areas of Computer Science and Informatics Engineering which are usually introduced in curricular units included in the curricula of BSc courses in Computer Science and Informatics Engineering.

4. REQUIRED PROFILE:

Admission requirements:

BSC in Computer Science or Informatics Engineering Student.

The awarding of the fellowship is dependent on the applicants' enrolment in study cycle or non-award courses of Higher Education Institutions.

Preference factors:

Experience on using high-level I/O libraries; Experience with the strace tool.

Minimum requirements:

- Knowledge on operating systems;
- Knowledge on the C programming language;
- Experience on using I/O system calls.
